Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1944.

No. _____
_____

THE STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA,

*Petitioner,vs.*JOHN A. STANTON.
_____PETITIONER'S BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI
_____STATEMENT OF FACTS

Briefly, the facts are as follows:

On July 11th, 1929, the lands involved herein were mortgaged to the State of North Dakota to secure a loan of $5,000.00 of the State School Fund, derived from sale of lands granted to the State by Congress by the Enabling Act of February 22nd, 1889. This mortgage was foreclosed and the property sold to the State for the amount due on the mortgage and costs amounting to $6,953.13, on August 31st, 1940 (R. 6). Petition of farmer-debtor was filed August 28th, 1941, after foreclosure sale (R. 1). On revaluation, the Conciliation Commissioner valued the property for purposes of redemption at $2,800.00 (R. 86). This valuation was approved by the District Court (R. 91). And such valuation was approved by the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals by its judgment of June 3rd, 1944.

POINTS URGED ON THE PETITION FOR A WRIT OF CERTIORARI

1. May a farmer-debtor bankrupt redeem from a foreclosure sale certificate holder for a less amount than provided by law of state where foreclosure was made, thereby depriving such certificate holder of his property without due process of law?

2. Are not Congress and the Legislature of the State of North Dakota equally bound by a contract or compact existing between the Federal Government and the State of North Dakota, by reason of the grant of public lands for school purposes made by the Federal Government and the acceptance of such grant by the State and its guaranty to protect and administer the funds arising from the sale of such lands as a trust fund?

ARGUMENT

Without discussion in detail of the authorities relied upon by the petitioner on the merits, we will call the court's attention briefly to the principal points and the supporting authorities.

I. Under the law of North Dakota, redemption from a foreclosure sale may be made within one year after sale by the mortgagor or any subsequent lienholder by paying to the certificate holder the amount of his bid plus interest.

Section 7754, C. L. North Dakota, 1913.

Chapter 211, S. L. 1933, Section 1.

Section 8085, C. L. North Dakota, 1913.

Certainly, to allow a private person, the mortgagor, or any other redemptioner, to redeem for less than the amount fixed by law, is to take another's property for the benefit of the redemptioner. This is taking the certificate holder's property without due process.

Whatever else may be uncertain about the definition of the term "due process of law," all authorities agree that it inhibits the taking of one man's property and giving it to another, contrary to settled usages and modes of procedure, and without notice or an opportunity for a hearing.

Boeing Air Transport vs. Farley, 75 F. (2d) 765, 767, 64 App. D. C. 162.

The State, as holder of the certificate of sale, was no longer a lienholder, but its lien had merged into an equitable title to its property, defeasible only by redemption according to due process of law.

Harrison vs. Griffin, 32 N. D. 188, 155 N. W. 655.

North Dakota Horse and Cattle Co. vs. Scrumgard, 17 N. D. 466, 117 N. W. 453.

The bankruptcy power, like the other great substantive powers of Congress, is subject to the Fifth Amendment.

Louisville Joint Stock Land Bank vs. Radford, 295 U. S. 555, 79 L. Ed. 1593, 55 S. Ct. 854, 97 A. L. R. 1106.

Therefore, the Bankruptcy Act, Section 75 (s), to preserve its constitutionality, must not be so construed as to permit the redemption from a foreclosure sale purchaser and certificate holder for less than the state law under which he purchases guarantees—the purchase price plus interest.

II. The money loaned and invested in the certificate here involved, $6,953.13, is a part of the school fund derived from sale of lands granted to the State by Congress for support of its schools.

In the State of Washington, the Supreme Court was considering the question whether or not an act of Congress making certain lands theretofore subject only to preemption, subject to the general homestead laws, had the effect of making Sections 16 and 36 of each section granted the State for its schools subject to homestead entry.

"The two subjects are so dissimilar that it cannot be held, in the absence of any clear expression to that effect, that in the passage of the latter act, Congress had the former in mind, and was intending to withdraw the special exception granted these four states; and that having created an exemption from any form of public entry as to Sections 16 and 36, as one of the conditions of the proposal under which the privilege of admission was extended to the States (Washington, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota), as soon as this proposal was accepted by the people and the constitution they had framed had been approved, and thus a solemn compact entered into between the States and the United States, whereby each contracted to hold inviolate the rights of the other, Congress sought to withdraw any portion of its proposal and to again restore these two sections to the public domain. To so hold is to our minds to accuse Congress of bad faith."

The State of North Dakota, by its Constitution, accepted these land grants in the following language:

"The State of North Dakota hereby accepts the several grants of land granted by the United States to the State of North Dakota by an act of Congress entitled 'An act to provide for the division of Dakota into two States, and to enable the people of North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Washington to form Constitutions and State governments, and to be admitted into the Union on equal footing with the original States, and to make donations of public lands to such States,' under the conditions and limitations therein mentioned; reserving the right, however, to apply to Congress for modifications of said conditions and limitations in case of necessity."

Section 205, Constitution of North Dakota.

Is there any question that a contract or compact exists between the United States and the State of North Dakota, whereby each is absolutely bound to protect the school fund arising from the sale of the lands so granted? And is there any question that, to construe the Bankruptcy Act (Sec. 75 (s) ) so as to allow a redemption from the certificate held by the State under which it is entitled to $6,953.13, with interest, to effect a redemption by the farmer-debtor for $2,800.00, is to violate that contract?

CONCLUSION

We conclude that Section 75 (s) of the Bankruptcy Act does not authorize a redemption from a foreclosure certificate holder for less than the state law provides, since such effect is in violation of the Fifth Amendment; and that to so apply the act to this case as to cause a loss to the State of over $5,750.00 of its school funds, is to so construe the act as to violate the contract or compact between the United States and the State of North Dakota.

Therefore, the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals is erroneous and should be reversed. We earnestly urge that this petition for a Writ of Certiorari be granted.

Respectfully submitted,
